

In addition to serving as principal flute in the New Choral Society Orchestra and managing a busy teaching schedule throughout the New York area, Donna Elaine is a gifted recitalist whose performances appeal to both professional musicians and newcomers to the recital medium. She has a passion for Music Education & History in relationship to Art, Architecture and Ideas through time.

“I believe in the power of music to influence the body, mind and soul. I endeavor to endow my students with every musical ability so that they are able to participate in music-making on any and every level for the whole of their lives.”

Miss Elaine is on the faculty at Lehman College, Hoff-Barthelson Music School, The Hackley School and Summit Music Festival. Miss Elaine also plays with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, the Yonkers Philharmonic and free-lances in the Tri-State area.
